JEFFERSON HIGH BALL TEAM WINS CHAMPIONSHIP

Hats off to the Jefferson Union high school baseball team—champions of the Peninsula Athletic League. That is the order among athletes in every high school from San Jose to San Francisco. And in some of these schools the enrollment runs from three to six times as high as the enrollment in Jefferson. For Jefferson walloped them all—big and little—with scores running all the way from 2-0 against San Mateo to 21-1 against South San Francisco. And Jefferson has not lost a game this season, the only school in the league with such a record.

In the preliminaries each school was scheduled to play two games with every other school in the local section, Jefferson, Burlingame, San Mateo and South San Francisco. And in every case, both in home games and elsewhere, Jefferson walked away with the long end of the score. The boys were, therefore, declared winners of the section championship.

In the Southern division of the league the San Jose team was looked upon as the most formidable aggregation of high school baseball players, and was expected to win the championship of the division. But the Sequoia Union high school team from Redwood City defeated San Jose, and thus won the right to play Jefferson for the championship of the peninsula.

Jefferson and Sequoia met on the San Mateo City park diamond last Friday afternoon and both teams were loyally supported by strong sections of rooters from the respective student bodies.

The feature of the game was Keagle's amazing record of 17 strikeouts for the nine innings of play—an average of almost two strikeouts per inning. Good support in every department helped the pitching record to make an outstanding game of this title contest.

Sequoia did manage to score in the first inning when a man came in on a wild throw to third base, but the Indians came back in the next frame with a lead of 2-1. Vireno and Enzslin brought in these runs.

Three men were struck out, one after another, when Sequoia came to bat in the third inning. The Indians added four more runs to their score in this inning, making the tally 6-1. Conti and Varni scored on a two-base hit by Keagle into center field. With Keagle and Kennedy on the bases, Vireno came to bat and drove a long three-bagger into the trees in right field.

The Indians scored two more runs in the sixth, when Keagle and Markovich scored on Gibbons' single. The last run was made by Markovich, who got a three-bagger. Sequoia made a run in each of the eighth and ninth innings.

The work of the Jefferson pitcher is attracting the attention of sport writers in San Francisco and elsewhere. Here is what James J. Nealson of the San Francisco Examiner says of him: "Stick a pin in this one. Gene Keagle, pitching for Jefferson high school of Daly City against the Redwood City high school, struck out 17 batters and allowed three hits at San Mateo last Friday. Two weeks ago this same lad pitched a no hit, no run game, and breezed 13 batters of the San Mateo high school. Looks like this kid from over the line must have something, and it will be interesting to tab his future doings in baseball. Come on, Gene, take good care of that wishbone of yours."

The Jefferson Union high school team consists of L. SoRelle, catcher; R. Enszlin, third base; A. Vireno, right field; O. Nystrom, left field; Gene Keagle, pitcher; J. Gibbons, first base; A. Ambrosio, right field; J. Conti, second base; R. Varni, center field; L. Kennedy, captain, catcher; P. Markovich, shortstop; O. Edwards, coach.

In former years Jefferson entered only the B division, or limited class, feeling that on account of the large enrollment in the other schools the home team would be unnecessarily handicapped. This year it was decided to meet all comers. The outcome justifies the ambition of the boys, and approved the judment of the coach and principal of the high school.

Daly City is proud of its high school baseball team.

P. T. A. TO INSTALL OFFICERS

The members of the Woodrow Wilson-Vista Grande Parent-Teachers' Association have selected the following officers, who will be installed on June 4: Mrs. Eva Page, president; Mrs. Lenore Smith, vice-president; Mrs. Anna Foss, recording secretary; Mrs. C. Sherwood, financial secretary; Mrs. Leona Light, treasurer. The delegates elected to represent the association at the state convention are Mrs. C. Sherwood and Mrs. F. Rickmann.

OFFICERS CHOSEN BY LOCAL EAGLES

The Eagles of Colma-Vista Grande Aerie No 1848 held their election of officers on Thursday evening, May 2. A large attendance was at the meeting, giving the candidates a big vote.

The Eagles have progressed wonderfully under the leadership of William Bolger, who retires as president and automatically becomes the Aerie's past president.

Those elected to office were: Ed. Heim, President; James Kennedy, Vice-President; B. G. Kost, Chaplain; A. Sturla, Secretary; P. G. G. Kunzie, Treasurer; E. Nessier, Conductor; J. Mendelson, Inside Guard; W. Sunderland, Trustee; Dr. Willis Cline, Physician. P. G. G. Kunzie, the Aerie's "watch dog," was honored by being elected for the twentieth consecutive year.

On May 23, the Eagles will hold a large class initiation, named the "Mother's Day Class," in honor of Mothers' day. The committee is working hard to make this class the biggest of the year, and all indications point to success.

NEW MEMBERS ACCEPTED BY GEN. PERSHING P. T. A.

General Pershing P. T. A. held a most interesting meeting on Tuesday, May 7, and several new members were accepted and welcomed by the president.

There will be a food sale at the school in the P. T. A. room on Wednesday, May 29, at 10 a. m. Anything in the way of home made cakes, salad or candy will be greatly appreciated by the members of the association. If you can not give, come and buy and help the good cause along, as the proceeds of this affair will be donated to the dental clinic of Daly City.

A Fathers' Night will be given before the end of the term, and an interesting program is being planned.

Mrs. S. A. Landini gave a short report on the Seventeenth District meeting in April at San Mateo, where with Mrs. Watt, Mrs. Landini represented General Pershing school. Mrs. Landini was elected a delegate to attend the state convention of the Parnet-Teachers' Association at Sacramento. Ten membership pins were ordered. There was a rummage sale after the meeting closed and quite a bit was realized.

CROCKER P. T. A. ENJOYS MOTHER'S DAY PROGRAM

The Crocker Parent-Teachers' Association held a very successful whist party on Wednesday afternoon at the fire house on Bellevue avenue. Preceding the game an appropriate Mothers' day program was given. A special cake was made for the remembrance of Mother. Everyone had a delightful time and enjoyed the good home made cakes and coffee that were served. The next regular meeting will be held on Wednesday evening, May 22, at the fire house. It is hoped that many fathers will be in attendance. Refreshments will be served as usual.

Mrs. McDermott, Mrs. Alexander and Mrs. Hughes attended the lecture on "Child Psychology," given by Luella Martin last Thursday morning at the Junior College in San Mateo. For six weeks these lectures will be given each Thursday morning from 9:30 to 11 o'clock. All those who can should avail themselves of this wonderful opportunity.

EASTERN STAR MEMBERS HAVE ENJOYABLE EVENING

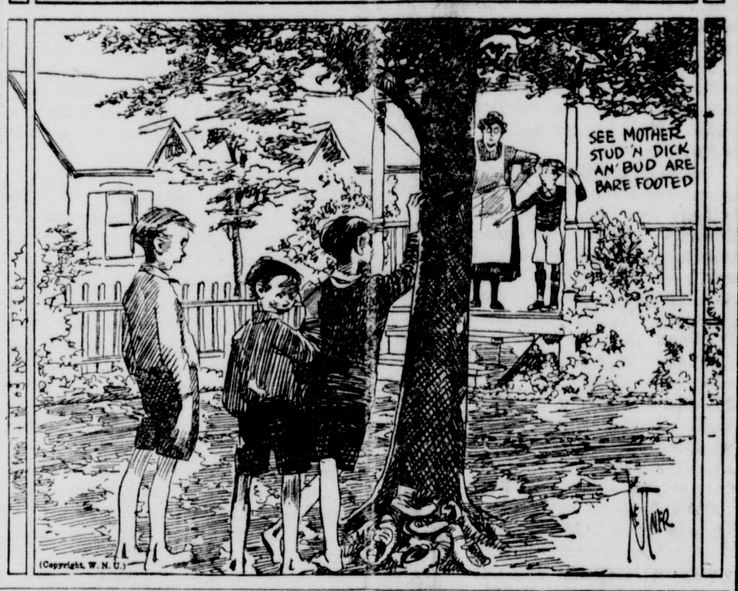
Members of Crocker Chapter No. 382, Order of the Eastern Star, report one of the most interesting meetings of the year last Monday evening, it being Associate Matron's night, when Louise Aitchison, Associate Matron, was honored by the members and many visitors. Following a most interesting meeting, a banquet was served in honor of the Associate Matron, the decorations of the banquet hall being most beautiful and appropriate. The committee in charge, Grace Miller, Augusta McCullough, Katherine Neiderhaus, Sophie Root, Bina Young and Rosa Zeides, were highly complimented for the decorations and the "good eats."

FREE CLINIC FOR CHILDREN AT VISTA GRANDE SCHOOL

A free examination of children who will enter school for the first time next fall, in the kindergarten and first grade, will be held at the Vista Grande school, Daly City, on Tuesday, May 14, from 9 to 12 o'clock. There will be no charge for these examinations, which are given under the sponsorship of the Bureau of Child Hygiene, State Department of Public Health.

This will be the third year of the holding of free examinations in Daly City, the examinations being made possible in this district by the Parent-Teachers' Associations of the district.

Events in the Lives of Little Men



TO OUR MOTHERS GOD BLESS THEM

Her heart holds a love that fills the whole world.
Her soul holds the brilliance of
heavens unfurled;
Her bright eyes hold great visions
of truth,
And her dear face holds the beauty
of youth!
About her dear presence a radiance
doth shine:
This is my Mother! Sweet Mother
o' mine.

—Rush.

To those dear mothers who have passed from earthly homes to the heavenly mansion we bow our heads for a moment in reverence, in appreciation of the sweet memories those dear mothers gave to us in lonely or eventful ful days. Then again we thank our Heavenly Father for the good influence left us by those same mothers, who led us in our infant years along the path of right and duty and who taught us by their example to learn that one must suffer and sacrifice to find and know what real happiness means. To the mothers whom God has let remain with us through years of happiness and uninterrupted companionship, let us give them the sincere respect and love that is due them and try in our small way to feel and return their great love, which we can never fully realize until we have lost them. Let us not wait till the parting takes place. Let us brighten their lives a bit on this sacred occasion, the day of days which has been set apart to do homage to mothers.

LILLIAN G. LANDINI

Send a flower, send a word of cheer, send a kind thought. Let us pray for the welfare and happiness of mothers.

To the future mothers let us be patient and considerate, for what would become of this old world without mothers?

A mother is that Divine tribute of the Supreme Creator to children of the earth. "God could not be everywhere, so therefore He made mothers."

LILLIAN LANDINI.

NEIGHBORS BID FAREWELL TO TWO POULAR MEMBERS

Vista Grande Camp, Royal Neighbors of America, met at the home of the Oracle, Mrs. Dolly Putney, on Woodrow street, to bid farewell to two of the members, Mrs. Augusta Devlin, who will leave with her daughter Helene on May 23 on an extended trip through Europe, and Mrs. Lucy Nelson, who will depart for New York with her little daughter Marn, on May 20.

Cards and music were the evening's diversion. Refreshments were served, and the table decorations were unique. At one end of the table was a miniature boat, at the other a train, each laden with handkerchiefs and good wishes for the honor guests.

Mrs. Nelson and Mrs. Devlin are both pioneers of Daly City and have been members of Vista Grande Camp for many years. Mrs. Devlin and Mrs. Nelson received many pretty handkerchiefs, which was a complete surprise to both.

The following enjoyed the evening: Mesdames Putney, White, Smith, Hopman, Scott, Hedvald, Wilson, Nelson, Devlin, Rampi, Gehringer, Brulez, Twesten, Brush, Appleton, Romer, Landini, and Miss Hazel Wilson.

VETERAN FIREMEN TO STAGE PICNIC

The Veteran Firemen of Daly City held their regular monthly meeting last Friday evening at their meeting place, Company No. 2 fire house, on Vista Grande avenue.

The matter of a home for the veterans was taken up and after quite a debate it was decided to refer it to the board of trustees of the Veteran Firemens' Association for their approval.

R. Foppiano, of Evergreen avenue, a member of Company No. 4, was initiated as a member of the association.

The Veterans' picnic will be held this year at the Trout Farm, Stevens Creek, Sunday, June 2, and all those who intend to go will meet at Mission street and Hillcrest Drive at 9 a. m.

The Veterans extend a hearty invitation to all the firemen and their families of Daly City, also the Eagles, who have been invited to join them on this day.

JEFFERSON ALL-STARS AGAIN VICTORIOUS

The Jefferson All-Stars decisively defeated the Rich Pie Shop baseball team of San Francisco at Jefferson Union high school grounds last Sunday, by the score of 20 to 5, making it their sixth consecutive win in as many starts.

Chick and Cage, alternating on the mound, pitched superb ball for the All-Stars, setting down thirteen batsmen and allowing six scattered hits between them. The boys are hitting the ball hard, and under the capable management of Vic Barskey, bid well to develop into a very formidable congregation of ball players.

The members of the team have planned a meeting for Friday night, their object being to obtain suits. The boys have decided that a benefit dance will be given June 1, under the auspices of the All-Stars. This means that the citizens of Daly City should get together and lend an eager hand to an ambitious group of young ball players who are striving to put this community on the map.

DALY CITY MERCHANTS WIN ANOTHER BALL GAME

The Daly City Merchants came through with another win last Sunday at Jefferson Union high school grounds, defeating the Ponce Athletic Club, 8 to 2. The visitors scored their two runs in the very first inning, but the home boys came right back with one in the first and four in the second. Gus Ford had easy going from then on. Joe Drucker, back at his old shortstop position, makes the team look right. Steel, the new first baseman, gives the fans quite a thrill with his base-running. He sure is fast. The team looked better last Sunday than it has for the past couple of weeks, both in the field and at bat. Batteries were: Daly City, Ford and Strand; Ponce Club, LaBelle and Duran.

RIVALRY BETWEEN LOCAL BOY SCOUTS

Rivalry of the keenest type between Daly City's two Boy Scout troops is causing rapid progressive steps in this organization. At the San Mateo county annual Scout jamboree, Troop No. 149 ran off with a second place in one of the events. Troop No. 103 has now officially offered a challenge to Troop 149, and plans are being completed to bring the two troops together in a meet where the rivalry is expected to be at the fever heat. During the past few months Troop 103 has been challenging the supremacy of 149. However, as yet neither troop has come to grips. It will be an interesting event when they do.

JEFFERSON UNION HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

By the Class in Journalism

Actual construction of the new auto shop has been started and the work is now rapidly progressing, with the foundations for the structure already laid. The contractors, Sorensen and Haggmark, have proved reliable in starting work on the building so soon after the bids were let.

The building will probably be finished sooner than was expected because of the promptness in starting. The contractors have seventy-five days to complete the shop, so the building will be ready for occupation next semester. It will be located near the San Diego avenue entrance to the school.

TO FORM LITERATURE CIRCLE

Plans for a Literature Circle, to be composed of all interested students who have done outstanding work in English, have been made by Mr. Wixman. The first meeting of the new organization will be held Monday after school in the library.

Membership in this organization will be limited chiefly to juniors and seniors who have received better than B grades in English, although members of the freshman and sophomore classes who have received A grades will be considered. Membership is to be recommended by the English teachers of the school.

Plans for a constitution will be drawn up Monday, and officers will be elected with recommendations from the faculty. Membership in the club will be rather large, as there are many students eligible to join.

After the club has been well established, another literature society will be formed with a smaller membership composed of students whose work in English has proved exceptional. This will be known as the Honor Literature Circle. Most high schools have such organizations.

WINNERS OF FLAG CONTEST

Viola Rehaume and Benny Roth were chosen as the winners of the Flag contest of this school at an assembly held Friday afternoon.

Viola had a standing of 183 points and Benny had 169 points.

These two winners' papers will be entered in the State Regional Flag contest.

Five students, Alberta Harper, Martha Johnson, Viola Rehaume, Benny Roth, and Andrew Vireno, competed for the honor of representing the school. The two winners received medals and the other contestants were awarded certificates.

Judges for the girls were Mrs. Jensen, Mrs. Landini, Mrs. Stockton; for the boys, Mr. Bentley, Mr. Gehringer, and Mr. Savage.

THREE CLASS TITLES SETTLED

Marie Pfeifer is singles champion of the freshmen class in tennis as a result of her game with Claudine Keagle, which she won 6-3 last Thursday.

Elizabeth Aiello and Esther Vireno's victory over Dorothy Riddell and Doris Maloney by 6-4 makes them doubles champions of the sophomore class.

Doris Maloney is singles champion of the sophs by her defeat of Elizabeth Aiello 6-0, whom she played last Monday.

In the junior class Florence Kennedy defeated Miriam Bentley 6-4 last Thursday after school.

A PRETTY CHURCH WEDDDING

St. Bridget's church, on Van Ness avenue and Broadway, San Francisco, was the scene of a beautiful wedding last Sunday afternoon, when Miss Cora Gaspidone, of San Francisco, became the bride of Mr. Louis Reviso, of Oakland. Miss Olga Petrova was maid of honor, while Miss Audrey Diamond was bridesmaid, and Mr. Harry Reviso, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Miss Gaspidone recently returned from a six months' tour of Europe with her parents, and is well known in Daly City, and her many friends wish her much happiness. Some of those from Daly City attending the wedding were Elsie Fahy, Marge O'Connor, Roberta Heaggney, Tessie O'Connor and Lorraine Wall.

An Enjoyable Birthday Party

Mrs. Mary White, of Theta avenue, entertained at luncheon last Wednesday in honor of her daughter, Mrs. B. Cinnamond, of Oakland, who celebrated her birthday. After luncheon the guests enjoyed an afternoon of Bridge. Mrs. Cinnamond received a number of gifts. The guests were Mrs. E. Cinnamond and Mrs. C. Stier, of Oakland, Mrs. A. Elliot, Mrs. J. Sweeney, Mrs. R. Sweeney, Mrs. L. Power and son Laurie and Mrs. J. Harris of San Francisco, Mrs. R. Ward, of San Mateo, Mrs. M. Westkamper, Mrs. C. Scott, Mrs. R. Richardson and children and Mr. and Mrs. Walter White, of Daly City.

MILLBRAE TO GET STREET WORK AND FIRE PROTECTION

The San Mateo county board of supervisors, in session at Redwood City last Monday, after a stormy meeting in which scores of citizens of Millbrae let loose a flood of oratory, passed a resolution calling for bids for street work and modern fire protection for the town of Millbrae.

Scores of Millbrae citizens, opponents and proponents of the proposed street paving and water system construction, were present at the meeting, and leaders of both sides spoke, frequently dragging personalities into their arguments. Costs of the improvements are estimated around $100,000.

The chief objection to the street work was the alleged high assessment against small property owners, who argued that Millbrae had not advanced enough to warrant the improvements proposed.

The bids of the two lowest bidders for improvement work on Middlefield road between Redwood City and Palo Alto, were held up for one week for further consideration. The two lowest bids submitted were: Peinsula Paving Company, $68,778.30; and Union Paving Company, $72,110.4. The other two bidders were Lewis J. Cohn, $76,646.04; and A. J. Raisch, $74,912.

The First National Bank of Redwood City was the successful bidder for the $15,000 worth of bonds for financing construction of a new grammar school at Pescadero.

The board appropriated $500 toward the joint highway district No. 9 for the purpose of continuing the engineering of the proposed coastside scenic highway from San Francisco to Santa Cruz, and for incidental expenses. San Francisco appropriated $1,650 for this purpose, while Santa Cruz appropriated $450.

The issuance of $85,799.57 worth of street improvement bonds for Lomita Park were approved.

Frank Bryant, San Francisco contractor, was given a sixty days extension of time for completion of the Memorial Park road. He informed the board that Julius Godeau, lumberman in the vicinity, had caused lumber, logs and other debris to be piled up at one section of the right-of-way of this new road. The matter was referred to County Engineer George Kneese.

Petitions for additional bracket type street lights in Belmont and Salada Beach were granted.

URGES MILITARY CAMP ENLISTMENT

Enrollment in the Citizens' Military Training Camps, to be held in California, as elsewhere in the nation, during June, July and August, is being urged by the Americanism Commission of the American Legion, headed by City Attorney LeRoy Johnson, of Stockton. Johnson calls attention to the fact that the American Legion posts in all parts of California will join with the Citizens' Military Camp Association in assisting the regular army in organizing the training camps.

Every county in the state has been assigned a quota for the camps and representatives of the American Legion will be commissioned in many California localities by Secretary of War Good to give information regarding the camps.

Johnson points out that the camps "give training in good citizenship; develop self-reliance, alertness, responsibility, leadership and courage as well as physical development; teach love of country; give a month's training without cost for which the applicant is furnished a free uniform and transportation to and from camp;" and that "no obligation to military service in any form is taken in these citizenship schools."

LA FIESTA CLUB MEMBERS ENTERTAINED IN NEW HOME

The regular meeting of La Fiesta Club was held last Friday evening at the beautiful new home of Mrs. Margaret Kennedy, Crocker Terrace. Miss Nora Healey, chairlady of the dance recently held by the club, reported that it was both a social and financial success. After the business meeting, conducted by Sarah Battaini, president, the members adjourned to the dining room where refreshments were served by the hostess, Magaret Kennedy, assisted by Elsie Fahy. Those that had a most enjoyable evening, and extended to Mrs. Kennedy wishes for much happiness in her new home were Audrey Diamond, Tessie O'Connor, Laura Figone, Louise Clements, Marge O'Connor, Sarah Battaini, Sylvia Fischer, Roberta Heaggney, Edna Boyle, Lorraine Wall, Annette Lucey, Christine Hume, Nora Healey, Florence McKendrick, and Elsie Fahy.

WILL BRING GAS TO BAY REGION

The Pacific Gas and Electric Company has placed orders with the Cooper Bessemer Corporation for five 760-horsepower gas compressors and twin tandem, double acting gas engines. These will be the first units of a $500,000 compressor plant to be erected at Kettleman Hills, Fresno county.

The apparatus will be used to pump natural gas into the 282 mile pipe line now being laid from Buttonwillow and Kettleman Hills to the San Francisco Bay area. The plant will be erected on 40 acres of land secured adjacent to the gas wells and will consist of a main compressor building, auxiliary engines, cooling towers, machine shops, cottages and headquarters for the sixty men who will be employed to operate the plant. Construction will start very shortly.

Rapid progress is being made in the laying of the main. Nine crews, consisting of approximately 1,000 men, are now engaged in laying the pipe and erecting a ten million cubic foot gas holder in San Francisco and an eight million cubic foot gas holder in Oakland. Approximately 89 miles of this 20 inch pipe have been laid to date.

Gas will be pumped into the line at the compressor station at 400 pounds pressure and the first unit will be capable of delivering 65 million cubic feet per day to the bay area. Additional compressors will be added to the line as the business develops, with an ultimate capacity of 120 million cubic feet per day.

WOULD MAKE MORE JOBS

As though thirty-four independent government commissions were not enough, Senator Couzens of Michigan proposes that Congress shall create another, a Communications Commission, with five high salaried commissioners appointed by the president, to "regulate" all forms of wire, cable and radio messages, both domestic and with foreign countries.

The fact that such enterprises are already regulated by various expensive official bodies, both state and national, evidently does not appeal to members of Congress who have gotten the commission mania. More government jobs are demanded, and the easiest way to supply them is to set up additional boards and commissions to inflict themselves on the long suffering taxpayers, declare the opponents of Couzens' measure.

As General Harboard quite recently pointed out, regulating commissions are already costing the people of the United states more than $550,000,000 a year. The efforts of most of these are almost negligible, it is claimed. But Senator Couzens will probably get his Communications Commission. A suggestion for creating new government jobs seldom fails to win Congressional approval.

BUSINESS MEN FAVOR RAILROAD EXTENSION

The Spokane Chamber of Commerce has been authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission to intervene in active support of the Great Northern-Western Pacific project to construct their proposed 200 mile connecting railroad between Klamath Falls, Oregon, and Paxton or Keddie, California. The Spokane Chamber of Commerce, according to the official announcement received at Western Pacific general offices, San Francisco, is now to be treated as a directly interested party in the matter of the applications for the certificates of public convenience and necessity which must be obtained before construction of the railroad which will connect the two railroad systems may begin.

The Spokane Chamber of Commerce is a civic body organized and maintained by the business men of Spokane and its surrounding trade territory for the purpose of forwarding and promoting the growth, expansion and development of the trade territory in the region of which Spokane is the economic center. Spokane is situated on the main transcontinental line of the Great Northern Railway in eastern Washington, and has a population of approximately 130,000. It is also the industrial and distributing center of the region commonly known as the Inland Empire, containing a population of more than 600,000.

FIVE HUNDRED FROGS TO JUMP IN CONTEST

Frogs, little frogs and big frogs are all hopped up in Angels Camp Calaveras county. In fact two days have set aside to see how far they can hop. Saturday and Sunday, May 18-19 is the date of the second annual Jumping Frog Jubilee to be held in Angels Camp. This year over two hundred frogs have so far been entered and the number is expected to increase to five hundred. Substantial prizes are offered for frogs making the longest jump, and for the largest and smallest frog exhibited.

Besides the frog contest, there will be a '49 celebration, bringing back the days of old and the days of gold. A huge '49 street parade, with various modes of travel dating back to 1849 in action, a museum, filled with various relics of early days will be opened to the public, snake fights, timber sawing contest, old time gambling halls, saloons, old time mining operations are a few of the various attractions that go to make up the Jumping Frog Jubilee.

Last year, a record crowd attended the Jubilee. This year a crowd estimated to exceed thirty thousand is expected. Many who desire out door life will bring their blankets and camp beside the many beautiful streams in the vicinity of Angels Camp.

Marilyn Ann Cuffell of Cleveland traveled from her home city to Chicago by airplane at the age of two months, and is believed to be the youngest baby ever to make such a flight.

USE OF COURTESY ON THE HIGHWAY

The Safety Conference of the California Development Association, with the co-operation of many other organizations, is putting forth every effort to educate the people in regard to the use of courtesy on the road, which is the safety lesson for this month.

"There is certainly plenty of opportunity for education along the lines of courtesy with the driving public," states a member of the association, "and in my opinion if we would all practice and personally exemplify courtesy when sitting behind the steering wheel, the accidents on the streets and highways of California would be reduced one-half.

"Courtesy is the cheapest thing in the world, but most of us, when we get into an automobile, think and act as though we were the only ones on the road and apparently forget that the other fellow is entitled to courteous consideration. Everybody is entitled to half the highway, but many of us seem to think our part is the middle half, and very often drive accordingly, and instead of extending to the other driver the same courtesy in this respect that we expect of him, we drive on seemingly unconscious of a breach of etiquette until a collision or some other form of accident takes place, and then immediately absolve ourselves of blame for what happened.

"Let us do all we can to instill in the minds of the driving public the one word COURTESY, the practice of which will help to overcome our inherent selfishness and make us think in terms of consideration for the safety and comfort of others as well as ourselves, thereby making the streets and highways of our state more safe for all."

OPERATOR SOUNDS SIREN; PUTS BANDIT TO ROUT

Although bound and gagged by a bandit who had invaded the office of the Unitah Telephone Company at Vernal, Utah, recently, Mrs Hazel Hackler, the night operator, succeeded in frustrating the holdup. It was about 3:30 o'clock on a Sunday morning that the bandit appeared, and as the operator reached for the switchboard to call the night marshal, he grabbed her by the throat and choked her and then bound and gagged her. Turning to the desk nearby, he picked up the cash box, but the operator succeeded in reaching with her foot the switch which sound the siren, with the result that the bandit became frightened and made his escape.

Highland, Wisconsin, has nineteen voters and sixteen of them have political jobs. Politicians and reformers are trying to make that ratio general throughout the country.

Hoover is the first president to have a desk telephone. He will probably receive an unusually sweet "excuse it, please," when he gets a wrong number.

YOUR BANK AND HOW TO USE IT

Bankitaly Agricultural Credit Corporation

The complex question of farm financing has enlivened many a political campaign and provided prime subject matter for whole armies of economists. The many adverse conditions that have tangled sturdy and ambitious agriculturists everywhere in a maze of debt are being studied intently by the banks also, in order that their contribution toward a betterment of the situation may be a substantial and abiding one. In this regard, the Bank of Italy has made a very definite move in the organization of the Bankitaly Agricultural Credit Corporation, designed to aid the farmers, livestock men and dairymen of the state in meeting their pressing financial problems.

The corporation has a paid in capitalization of $1,000,000. It is particularly interested in promoting the dairying interests of the state and improving the quality of range cattle and sheep. Loans are made for varying terms ranging from six months to three years and every branch of the bank is qualified to extend the corporation service.

The maximum loan is $500,000 and the minimum is $2,500. The percentage of value which will be carried against the chattel security will be set to make possible the purpose of the corporation and will vary with conditions. In other words, the loan will be based on as high a percentage of the value of the cattle or other security as good banking practice will allow.

The corporation has endeavored to simplify the loaning process by reducing the number of fees to be paid by the borrower to the lowest possible minimum. There is nothing to be paid for the loan excepting the inspection fee and the necessary legal fees.

As in the case of all bank loans, the character of the borrower and the sufficiency of the collateral are main considerations with the corporation. It is in a position to consider the individual problems of the farmer, dairyman or stockraiser and to make the loan on that basis.

Expeditious and simple in its methods and sympathetic in its consideration of the problems facing the client, the Bankitaly Agricultural Credit Corporation has given very definate and tangible assistance to the campaign to place agriculture and the livestock industry in California on a sounder and more profitable basis.

Bankitaly Mortgage Company

If a man desires a loan on improved property based on a higher loan value than a bank is permitted to establish under its rules, or for a longer term than a bank can usually consider on such security, he may apply to the Bankitaly Mortgage Company. The company will make long or short term loans upon "improved, income producing fee real estate in cities of 10,000 or over." Any branch of the Bank of Italy in such cities can handle any transaction for the Bankitaly Mortgage Company.

The company describes improved income producing fee property as follows: "Land owned in fee, improved with buildings, including homes and dwellings, occupied or suitable for occupancy and producing or capable of producing annually income not less than the annual interest and installments as required on the unpaid principal of the indebtedness."

Under the law the bank can not loan on more than 50 per cent of the appraised value of any property of the sort described here. The usual bank loan runs for one year with an optional privilege or renewal when the outlaw period is reached. As a usual thing a bank loan is not "amortized," that is paid off piecemeal, so that there shall be no principal or interest left at the end of the period covered by the loan agreement.

The Bankitaly Mortgage Company loans on security running as high as 60 per cent of the appraised value of the property. Its loans are five and ten years tender and are either flat loans, which have a five year maximum, installment loans not to exceed ten years, and providing for a reduction of the loan to 40 per cent of the appraised value in five years, and amortized loans of either five or ten years.

The interest rate is generally 7 per cent and runs but slightly higher than that of the Bank of Italy despite the special service given. All applicants must sign the application personally, and no loans will be made to dummy holders of titles. No agent can sign for an applicant.

This new financing, an adjunct of the Bank of Italy, is proving its worth in the building up of the communities where it operates.

WHY CALIFORNIA SETS MANUFACTURING RECORDS

California, with a total of $2,593,000,000, ranked eighth among the States in value of manufactured products during 1927, a Goverment census shows. In the two years beginning with 1925 the number of manufacturing establishments in the State grew to 10,066, with 262,396 employees earning $378,000,000 a year. Extension of gas and power lines to attract and develop industry played a large part in this increase in plants, workers and payrolls.

Senator J. J. Crowley's bill permitting the shipment of city inspected meat to all parts of the State without the necessity of State inspection was recommended for passage by the Assembly Committee on Public Health and Quarantine. The vote followed a bitter session, in which opponents of the bill charged meat packers of San Francisco and Los Angeles were attempting to "squeeze" out their competitors in the smaller cities by getting a virtual monopoly on the wholesale business. Opponents of the Crowley bill favored another by A. F. Jewett of Hanford putting meat inspection entirely in the hands of State inspectors, except in cities slaughtering live stock within their own limits and having their own inspection departments.

The Senate Finance Committee recommended for passage by the upper house the measure which already has passed the Assembly, providing for the establishment of a nautical school at San Francisco. An approrpiation of $115,000 is provided in the bill, which will provide for a naval training ship and courses of instruction for the teaching of seamanship. The Federal Government will aid in the expenses of the school.

Plans for improving the Colton airport to make it a Class A field and which would receive full government recognition, have just been submitted to the Chamber of Commerce by Larry Cooper, who is said to have designed Mines Field in Los Angeles. Mr. Cooper's plans call for the acquisition of additional land and a northwest-southwest runway 100 feet wide and 2800 feet long, lighting systems, hangars, administration buildings and other structures and equipment.

The campaign of the Modesto Mothers Band Club to raise $800 with which to purchase capes for the members of the High School and the Stanislaus County Boys' bands has been successful and the high school band will be fully uniformed when it goes to San Francisco to take part in the state contests.

Effective results of the California Committee on Public Safety campaign to promote state-wide traffic safety is reported from many quarters. Co-ordination of the various groups working to reduce the traffic accident toll is the purpose of the committee which has been organized by representatives of state departments having to do with traffic problems, the California State Automobile Association, the Automobile Club of Southern California, organizations of county traffic officials and other state-wide organizations. In view of the growing total of traffic accidents, the newly organized safety group is urging all motorists to join the state-wide campaign to protect life, limb and property on street and highway. Appeals to both adults and youngsters feature the messages being broadcast by the Committee this week. The message concerning children stresses the dangers of nipping rides and the appeal to motorists urges more careful signalling.

MOTHER'S DAY

The noblest thoughts my soul can claim,
The holiest words my tongue can frame,
Unworthy are to praise the name
More sacred than all other.

An infant when her love first came—
A man, I find it just the same;
Reverently I breathe her name,
The blessed name of Mother.

Mothers Idolized by the Famous

Pages of History Full of Glowing Tributes to "Mother" Made by Great Women and Men.

Men and women have laid the best and supreme efforts and fruits of their careers as tributes at the feet of their mothers.

The Roman orator declared, "The empire is at the fireside." Mohammed said, "Paradise is at the feet of mothers." A Scotch saying has it that an ounce of mother is worth more than a pound of clergy. Benjamin Franklin's love and devotion to his mother is axiomatic. He not only thought of her, but gave concrete expression to those thoughts, when he sent her a "moidore," a gold piece worth $6 "toward chaise hire, that you may ride warm to meetings during the winter."

That erratic genius, who quarreled with his patrons, sometimes repudiated his birthplace, antagonized critics and friends alike, James McNeill Whistler, painted a beautiful and tender picture called the "Portrait of the Painter's Mother." Among all of his brilliant and delicate works, this picture is probably the best known.

This man in his devotion to his mother forgot to be a cynic, and became a loving son. One critic states that, in this picture, a harmony in gray and black, the artist undoubtedly touched the highest point of excellence. This portrait of his mother as an old lady in the calm and serene dignity of age has brought tears of sweet remembrance to the eyes of many a man and woman. He has depicted her as an old woman, in a black gown, with a white cap, sitting at ease, with quiet hands, waiting and thinking.

As a white candle
In a holy place,
So is the beauty
Of an aged face.

England's best-known short story writer, a witty reconteur, whose prose is brilliant, sometimes satirical and scintillating, dedicated one of the earlier of his volumes of short stories "To the Wittiest Woman in India"—his mother. This book contained a tale which Cyril Falls, one of Mr. Kipling's critics, calls "one of the best short stories ever written"; which is fulsome praise enough! The story is one of the most amusing and laughter raising of the lovable old Mulvaney tales.

Found Types in Mother.

It is said that the popular Scotch author, Sir James M. Barrie, whose charm is so appealing to young and old—some one flippantly and smartly calls it "that d—d charm"—introduces into his writings characters derived from his mother up to the middle of the nineties, when she died. Prof. Robert E. Rogers of Technology says that "Doctor Freud's hypothesis of the mother complex in its purest form seems almost invented to fit Barrie."

The man's genius is thought by many to have found its most characteristic expression in his Thrums stories. These tales were the stories his mother used to tell him. "She told me everything," says the author, "and so my memories of our little red town were colored by her memories." Sir James' early writings were over the signature of Gavin Ogilvy, and, in 1894, he published "Margaret Ogilvy," based on his mother's life, and his own tender relations and love for her.

Mary Ann Evans, that English woman with the "masculine" mentality, who is known to posterity as George Eliot, lost her own mother at the age of sixteen. She never had children of her own. Yet the maternal instinct in her led her to write many things which speak directly to the heart of a mother. "A mother dreads no memories," writes this woman, who had educated herself in the languages, metaphysics and Spencerian philosophy: "those shadows have all melted away in the dawn of baby's smile." Which is exactly the mental state which Margaret Sangster reports finding in the mother of a numerous flock in a home of the direst poverty. "'She is my sixth baby,' said the sweet-faced German woman. 'Hasn't God been good to us?'"

Alice Cary's Tribute.

In "An Order for a Picture," Alice Cary has left us a beautiful tribute to mother:

A lady the loveliest ever the sun
Looked down upon you must paint for me;
Oh, if I could only make you see
The clear blue eyes, the tender smile,
The sovereign sweetness, the gentle grace,
The woman's soul and the angel's face
That are beaming on me all the while,
I need not speak these foolish words;
Yet one word tells you all I would say—
She is my mother; you will agree
That all the rest may be thrown away.

The better the mothers physically and mentally, the better the race, is a truism, worn, but worthy of repetition. Higher education for women! How can education for the mothers of a race ever be too high! Some wise and good man has said recently: "Educate a man, and you educate an individual; educate a woman, and you educate an entire family." Isabelle Beecher Hooker recognizes it strongly when she writes: "To my conception, one generation of educated mothers would do more for the regeneration of the race than all other human agencies combined; and it is an instruction of the head they need, and not of the heart. The doctrine of responsibility has been ground into Christian mothers above what they are able to bear."

"Maternal Efficiency."

The Medical Research council of Great Britain reports, after a long and exhaustive investigation among some 12,000 young children, that it is "maternal efficiency" that influences the health and growth of children in any and all walks of life. An efficient mother, in the squalid conditions of the slums, in the poverty of the mining districts, can outwit circumstances "so that her children get a physical start equal to that of better circumstanced families." The committee states that "even among animals there are good mothers and bad mothers." The first rear a large proportion of their young, and the second neglect or are indifferent to their offsprings.

A worker of experience is able to classify mothers in this respect into good, bad and indifferent. "When the children are repeatedly found to be dirty or verminous, badly clothed and left in bed until all hours of the day, when the house is constantly dirty and uncared for, the mother without doubt is inefficient. It is in this sense that the term 'efficient mothers' is used her. Bad parents, irrespective of their income, tend to select bad houses, as the money is often spent on other things."

Sons of Great Women.

Great men often have weak children; great women seldom. It is an interesting fact that students of heredity are agreed that girls often resemble their fathers in mentality, disposition and constitution, while boys "take after" their mothers. But the most interesting of all is the statement that the sons of intelligent mothers will be intelligent; while it does not follow that intelligent fathers will have intelligent sons. It is said that the poets Burns, Ben Johnson, Goethe, Walter Scott, Byron and Lamartine were all born of women remarkable for vivacity and brilliancy of language.

O wondrous power! how little understood!
Entrusted to the mother's mind alone,
To fashion genius, form the soul for good.

—Ann Low, in the Boston Globe.

"A Mother's Love"

"The love of a mother is never exhausted, it never changes, it never tires. A father may turn his back on his child, brothers and sisters may become inveterate enemies . . . and she can never be brought to think him all unworthy."
—Washington Irving.

To Mother

Mother is the dearest word in any mortal tongue;
Over all the earth so wide we hear her praises sung.
Through the greening valleys, now that spring has come again,
Hear the crooning lullaby that crowns the songs of men;
Ease your heart, dear mother mine, and throw your cares away,
Rest your busy hands and smile, for this, dear, is your day!

Mother

If I could mark it on the sands of time
Or write it on the sky of every clime,
This would I write, and write in boldest hand
That all the world might see and understand,
That far and wide, there could not be another
So fine, so sweet, so wonderful as MOTHER.

When it looks like all is up,
Keep a-goin!
Drain the sweetness from the cup
Keep a-goin!
See the wild birds on the wing,
Hear the bells that sweetly ring,
When you feel like singin' sing—
Keep a-goin!
—Frank L. Stanton.

THIS AND THAT

According to an account in a recent confectioner's trade journal, molasses candy was first given away, not sold. A thrifty New York baker, nearly a century ago, disliking to throw away the good but sticky sweetness collected in the bottom of his brown sugar barrels, boiled it down and pulled it until it became taffy. He did not think it possible to sell such a humble concoction, so he gave a stick of it away with each loaf of bread. To his surprise the demand for the candy outgrew the demand for bread, and he decided to charge for it. And so molasses candy came on the market.

"It is still a prime favorite with many and is especially good for children," says Doctor Bundesen of Chicago. "Tell every mother that the best way to develop a fine set of teeth is to let the child chew something rough and coarse. Molasses candy in small quantities after a meal will exercise and massage the teeth and gums as will other of the hard, old-fashioned candies."

Scrambled Eggs With Green Peppers.—Simmer two tablespoonfuls of chopped green pepper in a tablespoonful of butter for five minutes, then add four slightly beaten eggs, season to taste and cook until dry. Heat one-half cupful of tomato soup and pour over the eggs just before serving.

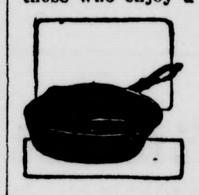
Baked Ham With Pineapple Rings.—Bake a thick slice of the center cut of ham in any desired manner. Brown a half dozen slices of pineapple in a few tablespoonfuls of the ham liquor and serve as a garnish around the ham.

Tomato Rarebit.—Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add two tablespoonfuls of flour, and when brown add two cupfuls of strained tomato or tomato soup. Stir until boiling, add paprika, one cupful of sauerkraut and one cupful of cheese. Beat in the cheese and let stand until the cheese is well melted. Pour over triangles of toast.

Egyptian Salad.—Flake one can of salmon and mix with one cupful of diced celery. Mix with boiled salad dressing. Place lettuce on salad plates, heap on some of the salmon, press lightly into the sides of the pyramid of salmon a dozen stuffed olives. Garnish with two or three ripe tomatoes, slice and serve with a ball of cottage cheese on each.

Good Things.

Here is a nice dish to serve for those who enjoy a meal of liver:



Spaghetti With Liver.—Brown one cupful of cubed calf's liver in two tablespoonfuls of sweet fat, season well with salt, pepper a little chopped onion and cook for ten minutes; add one-half cupful of tomato pulp, three cupfuls of boiling water add one teaspoonful of minced parsley and cook for twenty minutes. Cook one-half cupful of spaghetti in salted water until tender. Drain, and place on a platter. Pour over it the liver mixture, sprinkle with cheese and serve.

Sauted Tomatoes.—Tomatoes that are not fully ripe but well developed make a fine vegetable to serve with meats. Cut into thick slices and fry in sweet fat, sprinkle with a bit of flour to brown. Serve around the platter of meat.

Pineapple Skillet Cake.—Melt four tablespoonfuls of butter in a frying pan, add one cupful of brown sugar; when the sugar is melted add a can of sliced pineapple; arrange the drained pineapple over the caramel. Cover with the following: Beat four eggs, add two tablespoonfuls of water and one cupful of sugar, one cupful of flour sifted with one teaspoonful of baking powder and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Place in the oven to bake. When brown turn upside down and serve with whipped cream.

Hashed Brown Potatoes.—Chop six boiled potatoes fine, season with salt and pepper. Wash and chop three green peppers. Mix with the potatoes, add an eighth of an inch of melted fat to the frying pan and turn in the vegetables. Cook slowly, stirring occasionally. When partly brown fold into an omelet shape and fry a rich brown. Turn out on a platter, keeping the shape and garnish with parsley.

Ham Fillets.—Cut a thick slice of ham into strips one inch wide; let stand in cold milk two or three hours. Drain, dip into egg and fine crumbs and cook in ham fat until well brown on all sides.

Add a little chopped onion to scrambled eggs by cooking it first in the butter, then adding eggs and milk. Serve as a sandwich filling when one wishes a hot sandwich. Season well with salt and pepper. It makes a most appetizing sandwich.

MOTHERS DAY

Mother's Day, which is the second Sunday in May, falls on May 12 this year and will be observed throughout the United States in response to the annual proclamation by the President.

As is well known, the object of the day is to recall memories of the mothers who have passed to the beyond and to pay special tributes of affection to those living. The badge for the day is the white carnation, emblematic of the purity, beauty and fidelity of a mother's love. By some the red carnation is worn in honor of living mothers.

Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia originated the idea of Mother's Day, which was observed in several cities in 1910, the custom being extended rapidly in the following years.

Congress in 1913 passed a resolution offered by Congressman J. Thos. Heflin of Alabama recommending observance of the day by its members and by the executive departments at Washington. In 1914 Congress authorized the President to designate the second Sunday in May of each year as Mother's Day, the first proclamation under this authority being issued by President Wilson on May 9, 1914.

Few of us reflect as often as we should on the debt of love and gratitude we owe to our mothers. By thoughts and acts of sincere affection on Mother's Day, we not only honor them, but also honor ourselves.

GOLD STAR MOTHERS

Next year the first of the pilgrimages of Gold Star Mothers to France at the expense of the United States goverment will be made, and already applications are pouring into the War Department from those entitled to the privilege of visiting the graves of their sons "in Flanders field."

Widows of American soldiers buried in France, as well as mothers, will be eligible for these trips, according to the law passed by the last Congress, provided said widows have not remarried. It is estimated that about 30,000 women all told will be entitled to this privilage if they desire to avail themselves of it.

There will be three pilgrimages in 1930, 1931 and 1932, and generally speaking those applying first will be permitted to go first. Provision will be made to take approximately 10,000 each year.

In passing this law, Congress did a most graceful and patriotic act, and it is hoped that every mother or widow who has a loved one buried "over there" may take advantage of the government's generosity in arranging these pilgrimages.

RADIO TRAPS BANDIT

The practical uses of radio have been demonstrated in many ways, but what may prove to be one of its greatest benefits to society is being developed through its employment in the apprehension of criminals.

Perhaps the most up-to-date arrangement of this kind is now in operation in Chicago, where the Tribune has installed special receiving sets for various police squads of the city, all tuned to the wave-length of that newspaper's radio station, WGN.

When notice of a crime is telephoned to WGN, the regular program is interrupted and an alarm is broadcast, giving the location of the crime, description of the criminal, if known, and any other information which might lead to the capture of the culprit.

One night recently two robbers escaping in an automobile were captured by bicycle policemen within five minutes after the radio alarm was broadcast. Numerous other similar captures have been made.

Criminals usually turn all new inventions to their own benefit, but it is difficult to see how they are going to beat this radio system if it comes into general use. Of course, this plan can only be successfully employed in the case of certain classes of crimes, but the knowledge that it is in use will eventually tend to upset the morale of the criminal class.

At last reports the reparations delegates were only a billion marks a year from a complete agreement.

HOOVER'S TARIFF IDEAS

Manufacturers and other business men generally appear to be fairly in accord with President Hoover's ideas regarding the desirability of maintaining and extending the flexible provisions of the existing tariff law. Whether the politicians will agree with the policies outlined by the president in his special message to Congress remains to be seen.

Commenting on the message, the executive committee of the National Association of Manufacturers recently issued a statement through its president, John E. Edgerton, in which full approval of the Hoover proposals was expressed. It said, in part:

"Commercal preparedness demands a flexible means of adapting our protective policy to any economic menace to American social standards or our capacity for steady employment at our established wage levels. A static tariff is impractical in a dynamic industrial world."

Briefly, the Hoover idea is that general tariff policies should be defined by Congress, but that the details should be largely administered by the president upon the advice of a highly qualified Tariff Commission continuously engaged in fact-finding studies upon which to base its recommendations—all to be removed as far as possible from the influence of partisan politics.

It is a business-like, common-sense plan, to which no valid objection can reasonably be made.

"AIN'T IT THE TRUTH"

The following editorial, headed "Three Months," appeared in a recent issue of the San Francisco News:

"'It's not every day that a million dollars is sent to jail.' That is what they say about Harry Sinclair. He has gone to jail for three months.

"Sinclair conspired with Secretary Fall to defraud the government of its naval oil reserves at Teapot Dome. But that is not why he is going to jail. Sinclair also was charged with trying to obstruct justice in one of his trials by having members of his jury shadowed. But hs is not going to jail for that.

"It is because he refused to answer Senate questions regarding the Teapot deal that he is going behind the bars—for contempt.

"Sinclair is fortunate in his offense.

"How wise of him not to criticize the Mussolini dictatorship.

"Then he might have been sent to Atlanta prison for a whole year, like Carlo Tresca of New York.

"If he had sent a sex education pamphlet through the mails he might have got five years.

"If he had sold liquor under the Jones law he might have got five years. Or in Michigan he might have got a life sentence for selling a pint.

"If he had distributed literature of the Workers' party, a legal political organization, he might have been sentenced to five years like the three workers recenly convicted in Pennsylvania.

"Or if he had been an innocent labor leader like Tom Mooney, whom the local authorities wanted to 'get,' he might have been sentenced to hang and then received a commutation to life imprisonment.

"But it is not every day that a million dollars is sent to jail—even for three months."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

It is well known, even to the layman, that the value of a news story depends upon the personality of the individual concerned and the public interest in the individual.

Karl A. Bickel, president of the United Press, recently undertook to select the "ten most interesting news personalities in the world" at the present time. These are his selections:

1. Herbert Hoover.
2. The King of England and the Prince of Wales, bracketed together.
3. Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.
4. Ex-President Calvin Coolidge.
5. Benito Mussolini.
6. Henry Ford.
7. Thomas A. Edison.
8. Charles Chaplin.
9. David Lloyd George.
10. President von Hindenburg of Germany.

In a statement accompanying his selections, Mr. Bickel mentioned that as the subject of a news story the Prince of Wales is more interesting to the people of the United States than to those of England.

Among women, Mr. Bickel thinks that a list of the most interesting would probably include Mrs. Hoover, Mrs. Coolidge, Mary Pickford, Queen Marie of Rumania and Madam Curie, discoverer of radium. He did not mention Mrs. Gann.

HASN'T MISSED DAY ON JOB IN FIFTEEN AND HALF YEARS

Miss Ella Hicks, telephone operator for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company at Chesterton, Md., has served fifteen and a half years without missing a day except for vacations.

Miss Hicks is one of several operators employed by the Chesapeake and Potomac Company who have a record of not missing a single day since their entrance in the service but her record is a longer one than any of the others.

Some folks are just habitually spoiling for a fight. Russians in New York City indulged in a free-for-all scrap over the respective merits of Comrades Stalin and Trotsky.

BECK ON CENSORSHIP

Congressman James M. Beck of Pennsylvania, speaking before the Sons of the American Revolution in Washington recently, made a scathing attack upon the tendency toward censorship, which he termed a political instrument of oppression "that belies the very name of freedom."

He referred particularly to censorship of motion pictures, citing the case of the film "The King of Kings," which a municipal censorship board in Memphis, Tennessee, prevented being shown in that city, although the picture was approved by important religious bodies, and is considered by the public generally as one of the great masterpieces of the screen.

The theatre owner appealed to the circuit court, which decided in favor of the picture. Then the censors took the case to the appellate division, which ruled that the censorship should stand, also declaring that the lower court had no right to even look at the picture after it had been banned by the censors. The state supreme court upheld this ruling.

If such censorship is permitted to become general, we may expect to see freedom of speech and of the press attacked next. Even though liberty is sometimes abused, the abuses may be corrected without striking at the foundations of liberty itself.

More than 200 Boy Scouts did valiant service during the recent Alabama floods, assisting the Red Cross and Salvation army in relief work.

RURAL HOME COMFORTS

Recently an editoral writer pointed out that farm people move to the cities and towns in order to enjoy "comforts of life denied to the rural citizen." While this is true to a certain extent, there are few of the comforts of life which might not be enjoyed by the rural population.

Many modern appliances for the home are available for the farm as well as the city, and in most cases at no greater cost. For it must be remembered that city folks do not have running water, labor-saving devices, telephones, radios and the like without paying for them.

One of the most important movements now under way with a view to greater rural comfort is that of rural electrification, which has already bought central station services to millions of farms. It is being rapidly extended in many states, through the co-operation of the electrical companies, agricultural colleges and the farmers themselves. There is no reason why it may not be brought to a large majority of all farms, except those in the most remote sections, within a few years.

Compared with conditions which existed in the past, farm life of today is on a much higher plane, so far as conveniences and comforts are concerned. With the continued development of labor-saving machinery and devices for the elimination of household drudgery, further improvement is bound to be even more rapid in the future.

HEROISM AT SWITCHBOARD

When fire recently destroyed a grain mill, lumber yards and sheds at South Sudbury, Mass., telephone operators stuck to their posts at the local telephone exchange which was located just across the street from the grain mill, in spite of the fact that the exchange was seriously threatened and that the firemen were compelled to keep the streams of water playing upon the building.

HERE'S WHAT MAY BE NEW RECORD FOR HELEN WILLS

Perhaps the record for long distance newspaper interviews was established when the engagement of Miss Helen Wills of tennis fame to Frederick Shander Moody, Jr., of San Francisco, was announced. The London Evening News, on receiving the report of the engagement, called up the tennis star on the transatlantic transcontinental telephone, and in this way secured direct confirmation of the story, and her assurance that the engagement would not interfere with her Wimbledon visit this year.

It was around dinner time in London when the enterprising British newspaper called up the American star, but it was around breakfast time on the Pacific Coast. The reporter and the American girl were separated by more than 6,000 miles of land and water.

A good many appear to get a sizeable kick by watching someone else work.

THE TRAIL OF '98
BY ROBERT W. SERVICE

THE hardships, the perils, the romance of the Klondike trail are told by one who traveled it. The poet has turned novelist and gives us a love story in which tender romance vies with rough adventure, humor and thrills. The grim humor and excitement of "The Cremation of Sam McKee" and "The Shooting of Dan McGrew" are paralleled in almost every chapter.

Unfair to Ask Citizens to Pass, by Their Vote, on Scientific Problems

By CIRCUIT JUDGE ROBERT M. TOMS, Detroit.

THE modern tendency toward democracy is a vicious perversion of our representative form of government. I am not referring to the political parties in speaking of the democratic and republican forms of government. In a democracy the people themselves elect their own officers and pass their laws, as they did in the town meetings in New England years ago. In a republic, the government is by proxy.

In Detroit we are getting away from the republican form of government when we submit important propositions to the people for vote. And what fools the people have made of themselves! A recent election demonstrated the folly of asking the voter, the man of the lathe or the grocery counter, to vote on an issue which should be decided by scientific and economic experts. At that election the rapid-transit proposition proved to be a popular "no" issue. Consequently the voters rejected the two other propositions on the ballot, which had nothing to do with the expenditure of money.

The people vote in cycles. Eight or ten years ago, we had a "yes" epidemic among voters. After the people got stuck on a couple of propositions, they began to vote "no," and they are still voting "no" regardless of the merits of the issue.

A few years ago Detroit voters decided they wanted street car tracks on the Belle Isle bridge. They voted "yes," without taking engineering problems into consideration. The tracks were laid and are there today, a monument of public legislation. They go nowhere, and not a wheel has been turned, but thousands of dollars were wasted.

It is not fair to the people to submit such matters to them. The city should not expect the public to make decisions that can only be reached by men scientifically informed. This government either federal or municipal was never intended to be democratic. To call on the people to pass their own laws and ordinances is a vicious perversion of republicanism.

"Fear-Thoughts" Too Much in the Minds of the Present Generation

By REV. HENRY DARLINGTON (Episcopal), New York.

One of the great things that Jesus sought to give us was happiness, joy and peace. God meant us to get the most out of life. God could not have put beauty and harmony and music into the world unless he meant for us to enjoy it.

Here in America we seem to think that unless a man is working his finger nails off there is something wrong with him. We seem unable to relax, to sit content on a beach and listen to the music of the waves. Do we ask ourselves ever, "What would Jesus do in the presence of a sunset? Would he not have sat in the cool of the evening and enjoyed it?"

Instead, are we not so anxious to go through the picture galleries that we never stop to look at the pictures on the walls? So eager to plan our children's careers that we haven't time to take them by the hand and let them enjoy the sunset?

Beside the inability of Americans to relax, there are three other "joy killers." These Puritanical ideas which too frequently make people think that to enjoy themselves would in itself be wrong, worry, and jealousy.

Jesus preached against worry. In one of the modern translations we find Him saying "Don't let these fear-thoughts get the better of you." Worry implies our lack of faith in the love of God and it tends to destroy what faith we have. Let us remember that even in the garden of Gethseman e, when exhaustion and anxiety hung over Him, these did not prevent Jesus from stretching out His hand and healing the man who was wounded.

Reign of Democracy Endangered by System of Choosing Chief Executive

By PROF. G. DICKINSON, University of Illinois.

The electoral college method of choosing the Chief Executive of the United States endangers the reign of the majority, upon which democracy is based. One of the chief faults in the system is the difference often found between the percentages of popular votes and electoral votes that a candidate receives. Hayes in 1876 and Harrison in 1888 were elected, although more popular votes were cast for their opponents.

It is possible, although improbable, to get the necessary 266 electoral votes with less than ten per cent of the popular votes cast. It is high time the United States abandoned an election system which endangers the rule of the majority.

Although President Hoover received only 58 per cent of the popular vote, he was given 444 electoral votes, which is more than 81 per cent of the total. Furthermore, a shift of only 500,000 votes from Hoover to Smith would have resulted in the election of a minority President, and a shift of 148,000 votes in the other direction would have deprived Smith of any electoral votes.

The average number of popular votes per each electoral vote was 69,000. In Illinois 107,000 votes were required for one electoral vote, whereas in South Carolina only 8,000 votes were necessary. That is, a vote in South Carolina was worth more than thirteen in Illinois and more than seventeen in California.

We elect our governors by popular vote; why not our Chief Executive?

Orphanages of Country Called on to Develop Special Type of Education

By AARON JACOBY, Brooklyn Hebrew Orphan Asylum.

The public institutions of today have become an educative force. They afford the children the advantages of contact with the outside world. Their charges are allowed to go to public libraries and schools, and to outside social functions.

But the institution of tomorrow must be different. The children of tomorrow will need things which neither the congregate nor the cottage type of institution can furnish them. They will need psychological treatment, vocational guidance and other things that our present institutions have not the physical facilities with which to supply them.

One of the great causes for a new kind of asylum is the fact that children committed today are no longer those who have lost one or both parents, but those from homes disrupted by economic or domestic trouble. In my opinion, they represent a group whose intelligence is considerably lower than those of 15 years ago.

Rome's Glories

©The National Geographic Society

View of Rome From St. Peter's Dome.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

WITH the signing of an agreement between Italy and the Vatican, Rome has become a center of world interest. It is a way of Rome's. It was the first of all the Italian cities to shake the world, and it has been the imperial center of civilization, culture, politics and religion. Two of civilization's periods developed in Rome and bear forever her stamp and sign. Her first period gave to the world lessons in discipline, centralized government, colonial policy and control, civil law, military science, hygiene and water supply. The very persecutions of that age stimulated the primitive Christians throughout the empire into banding together until the early church took definite shape.

Though the situation of Naples, with its enervating charm, worked nothing but evil to that city, the location and physical character of Rome—hills for defense a river for navigation, broad surrounding fields for grazing—proved the greatest asset of her people. It had so many natural advantages that every warring tribe which captured it was itself captured and quickly became Roman, thus making the city always the strongest in the peninsula, because it was the home and fortress of the strongest people.

And from being the strongest city of her district, and then of her whole country, Rome naturally expanded until she dominated all the world of her time. One of her mightiest weapons was her malleability, her willingness to learn of others, even though her inferiors. So she progressed swiftly, irresistibly, originating here, improving there, experimenting yonder, with the result that the ichor flowed from her sturdy veins throughout the whole world in inspiration and example.

The charming legend of the beginnings of Rome is quaintly illustrated by the famous bronze figure known as the Capitoline Wolf. For the benefit of visitors to the museum, it should be said that the wolf is a very ancient beast, but the twins so naively attached to her are modern additions. The archeologists, alas, no longer permit us to believe the legend, or that the town took its name from one of the twins.

Rome's Sewers and Water Supply.

Tiber has always been an unruly and turbulent stream; but the sophisticated descendants of the early Romans—the latter sought to appease his anger by sacrifice and rich gifts—have restrained him within massive walls. From a height the river looks a huge walled fosse, as if one-half the city were protecting itself against the other. The bridges that leap the tawny flood in noble arches of gleaming limestone and ruddy brick and dark metal—throbbing by day with pedestrians and vehicles and sparkling of an evening with their golden lights—give a curiously different effect: that of stitches binding together the edges of the great gash.

At first Roman genius concerned itself only with useful works, such as sewers, bridges, viaducts. The Cloaca Maxima, the great sewer that still drains the Forum into the Tiber, is probably the oldest true arch in Europe, and testifies both to the Romans' study of Etruscan models and to their skill as architectural engineers. And what aqueducts they built—simple, grand, splendid! Witness the towering Acqua Claudia, 45 miles long, that comes striding over the low, flat Campagna like a giant on stilts—a hundred feet high in places. Water was something every Roman community enjoyed by right of citizenship.

Ancient Rome is said to have consumed no less than 340,000,000 gallons of water a day; and one of the most noticeable features of the modern town is the prodigal effervescence of its water, gushing from fountains of every conceivable size and design. The Trevi is the most magnificent in that city, its water—called Acqua Vergine, virgin water, because of its purity—the finest.

The time, the skill, the money the Romans put into their highways—among the most remarkable of all their engineering works—are almost incredible. No less than 11 of these great arteries radiated from the city—"all roads lead to Rome," runs the ancient proverb. The most famous, the Via Appia, was built in 312 B. C. It was kept in constant repair until the Middle ages, and still connects Rome and Brindisi, a distance of 366 miles.

Though no burials were permitted in Roman cities, it comes as a surprise to find the finest roads lined with the ruins of all sorts of tombs; stranger yet to find that in medieval times the most magnificent of the tombs were turned into strongholds and crowned with battlements. The oldest and handsomest of the tombs on the Appian Way is the enormous circular mausoleum of Lady Caecilia Metalla, more than 90 feet in diameter with a frieze of flowers and skulls of oxen.

Huge Impressive Tombs.

Equally impressive, though not a stronghold, is the slender, graceful, pyramidal tomb of Sir Caius Cestius, 116 feet high, which stands just outside the Ostian Gate, whence St. Paul emerged on his way to martyrdom. We probably never should have heard of Sir Caius but for this pyramid; the egotism of men sometimes lives after them.

Rome's greatest historic and traditional interest centers in the Forum Romanum, once a deep and marshy little valley between the Capitoline and Palatine hills. In the beginning it probably looked something like one of the present-day open-air markets. But it did not look like a market long, for temples and imposing public buildings were added more and more to the shops and stalls until the whole forum was a blaze of gilded bronze and marble, a magnificent show place worthy of the center of civilization.

And today? Ghosts and ruin! Here in a somber file are the stumps of the Colonnade of the Twelve Gods. That heavy basement of brick and mortar, with bits of cracked marble still bravely shining on it, was the orator's platform, where Antony came "to bury Caesar, not to praise him." Across the Holy Way all there is left of murdered Caesar's Basilica Julia is its brick foundation; beyond, the crumbling fragments of the palace of the Vestal Virgins, where a few melancholy, shattered statues of the high priestesses of this pure and lovely cult stand tranquilly amid the desolation.

Ancient Art in Modern Setting.

And hither and yon, from Palatine to Capitoline, from Tabularium to Colosseum, only ruin—brick, mortar, marble, columns, arches, statuary—all desolate and forlorn and broken. And the lamentable part of it all is that it was not the northern barbarian who accomplished the greatest ruin, though he did his share. For a thousand years any Roman who wished to build church or palace simply came here, tore down and carried away whatsoever he would. Worse yet, contractors actually demolished whole structures—to burn their marble for lime—and eventually peasants turned the buried waste into a vegetable garden and a cow pasture. It was not until 1870 that the Italian government began systematic excavation and unearthed the present panorama of destruction.

The Romans were late in developing artistic genius, for first of all they were men of action: fighters, strategists, politicians—imperialists. Their work reflects them — their vast strength, their love of lavish adornment, their lack of true refinement, and their carelessness of subordinate detail. Simpson points out in his "History of Architectural Development" that had they possessed the artistic sense of their Greek neighbors their architecture would have been the grandest the world has ever seen.

For all the destruction and modernizing that has transformed the Eternal City, its ancient magnificence crops out in unexpected places: in the blank wall of the stock exchange, eleven columns of Neptune's temple; in a narrow street, twelve arches of the Theater of Marcellus, filled with workshops; again, a few forlorn survivors of the once splendid Porticus of Octavia, and so on. At the end of one of the massive stitches that span the Tiber the gleaming solid marble of the exquisite little round temple of Mater Matuta—or whatever it may have been called—gems the bank like a great pearl.

A few paces farther along, thrusting indomitably up from the level of older days, all the beauty of pure Ionic ideals is crystallized in the so-called Temple of the Fortune of Men, soft-hued tufa and weathered travertine. The two stand almost intact, because of the early Christians whose eye for beauty—or was it their practical sense?—seized upon and preserved them as churches when the old gods ceased to call.

MOON AND SUN

"I suppose it does seem funny to see the moon in the daytime," said the Moon. "But you see I was wakeful, that's all.

"I didn't feel sleepy. I had a dream that I was watching the sun trying to keep everyone warm, and the first thing I knew was that the dream was coming true and that I really was watching the sun."

"So the dreams of the moon come true, do they?" asked the Sun.

"Often, often," said Mr. Moon. "and now that we are talking about dreaming, let me tell you of one I had the other day."

"The other night, you mean," corrected the Sun. "No, that is right. Of course you do mean the other day. That is when you do your dreaming.

"I can't help keep thinking of the night time for dreaming. Well, Mr. Moon, I didn't mean to interrupt you."

"I was asleep over yonder," pointed Mr. Moon.

"Yes, yes, go on," said Mr. Sun.

"And I had the most dreadful dream."

"Oh, was it a bad dream?" asked Mr. Sun, kindly. "How very sad. Tell me about it.

"It is a good scheme to tell a bad dream and then forget all about it."

"I think so, too," said Mr. Moon. "I don't think I was snoring, for I don't believe I was lying on my back.

"You see if my shape is half-sized, I lie on one side. If I am a crescent shape I curve and curl up in just that beautiful way.

"When I'm a full moon I can't lie on my back very well, as I don't just know which my back is.

"I'm so round and fat you know.

"I Didn't Feel Sleepy."

It's very hard to know just where one's back is, very hard, sometimes."

"Of course," said Mr. Sun, "get on with your story of the bad dream."

"And I was lying there asleep—"

"Yes, yes," said Mr. Sun impatiently. "Naturally you were asleep. No one dreams when they're awake—at least not a bad dream."

"I must lead up to my story slowly," said Mr. Moon.

"I notice that," said Mr. Sun, "but I hope you'll get there soon."

"I thought," continued Mr. Moon, "that I was made of green cheese. Oh, it was so awful! I was soft and squashy and horrid!"

"That wasn't a nice dream," agreed Mr. Sun.

"And I thought, in my dream," went on Mr. Moon, "that I was being cut up with knives and that people were spreading me upon crackers and biscuits.

"Oh, it was horrible. And how soft and wretched I did feel.

"And such a color—green—just imagine!"

"Well," said Mr. Sun, "I know all about it."

"You know all about what?" asked Mr. Moon. "My dream, do you mean? Of course you know about it, for I have just told it to you. That's quite simple."

"No," said Mr. Sun, "I know why you should have had this dream.

"There was some one who once said as a joke that the Moon was made of green cheese."

"Did any one ever say that?" asked Mr. Moon, who began to grow red with anger.

"Yes," said Mr. Sun, whose voice was getting lower and lower for he was very sleepy, "some one once did say that.

"So you had to dream it, just to prove that it was a joke. A great, big, jolly joke.

"For you're not made of green cheese, are you?"

"I should just say I'm not," said Mr. Moon. He was large and red now.

"Good night," said Mr. Sun. "It's my bedtime now, and you've taken off that thin white robe for a bright red one.

"No one will notice me now. It's the time for you. And cheer up! You'll never have another dream like that. For you see, yourself, what a silly joke it is.

"You're a great red moon, and you are not made of green cheese. Not you!"

"Not I," echoed Mr. Moon, who was now alone in the sky.

WORKS HARD IN THE FIELD

Relies Upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Cop Goes to Cell in Girl's Place

Pittsburgh.—Patrolman Fahart Saba wasn't quite clear as to just what law was being violated when a young girl resisted his wooing, but he was sure it either was against "the law or ought to have been." So when Miss Katherine Certich rebuffed him after the two returned from an automobile trip he arrested her.

He took her to the North Side police station and then encountered an obstacle. Saba never had heard of the crime "lese majeste" and wasn't sure if it was on the statute books, even if he had heard of it. He took his problem to Captain Block in order to find out with just what crime the girl should be charged. Captain Block listened to the patrolman, he listened to the girl and then he ordered the cop locked up. Saba was fined $10.

"RED" CAGLE FINDS HE'S ONLY CADET

Football Star Must Pay for Breaking Rules.

West Point, N. Y.—Back of the grim gray quadrangle in West Point Christian K. ("Red") Cagle, the army's great all-American halfback and the cadet corps' hero, must do a dreary penance with the nimble feet that won him fame. Every Wednesday and Saturday he must march, strictly at attention, until he has hammered out his penalty on the hard gravel for 22 hours.

He does it on his own time and he does not complain, although it bars him from track competition this year. All his extra and precious minutes must be spent marching up and down a 100-yard stretch of gravel, because he broke the inflexible regulations of West Point.

The captain of next fall's Army football team owes his dilemma to missing a boat at Hoboken. He was supposed to catch it. It was a breach of discipline. In the eyes of the West Point faculty, there is no "Red" Cagle, meteoric football star. There is only Cadet Cagle, second classman, Second battalion.

As he strides, hour after hour, executing a snappy "to the rear march!" at each end of the 100-yard stretch, his bearing is a little proud, for he is proving that he is fit to be an officer and a gentleman, as he will become by act of congress when he is graduated. He is proving that a potential officer of the United States army can accept harsh discipline as unflinchingly, as later he may pass it out.

"Red's" offense was comparatively trivial, if any offense can be so regarded in West Point. Cagle came to New York city recently with a party of cadets on an educational trip.

This particular mission was a visit to the Museum of Natural History. The cadets on the party were dismissed late in the afternoon. They were granted their freedom until 11:45 p. m., when they were to board the 11:45 p. m. Weehawken ferry for transport to Jersey in time to catch the midnight train for West Point.

What the dashing football star did with his liberty is not known. But it seems that he left himself too little time to reach the ferry.

Refused Divorce, Man Kills Sweetheart, Self

Columbus, Ohio.—E. E. Welsh chose death for himself and his young sweetheart rather than continue the four-year illicit love affair which he believed never would be legalized.

Welsh's body and that of his stenographer sweetheart, Eleanor Porter, were found in his motor car near New Albany.

On her finger—the engagement finger—was a cameo ring he had given her. In another box in his pocket was a gold wedding band, which he could not legally give to the girl because he already was married and his wife refused to divorce him.

Welsh, forty-three, was auditor and secretary of the Gwinn Milling company. He had a fifteen-year-old daughter and up to four years ago the family had appeared happy.

Several months ago Welsh and his wife separated.

A farmer discovered the two bodies in Welsh's motor car. Coroner Joseph Murphy said there was no question that Welsh had killed the girl and then committed suicide.

Psychology Is Seen in Yankee Contests

Inability to beat New York has been Philadelphia's greatest handicap in the last two years.

Grove, invincible against six teams in the American league, wilts before the attack of the Yankees.

Grove lost eight games last season and he lost six of them to New York.

He is a fast ball pitcher and New York is a fast ball hitting team.

If Grove overcomes the New York hoodoo Philadelphia will have a better chance of winning.

There is considerable psychology involved and psychology is hard to beat in baseball, or anywhere else in sports for that matter.

Cubs Using Pitcher to Imitate Enemy in Game

Henry Grampp is a fixture on the Chicago Cubs' pitching staff, yet he never pitches a game. He is the only major league baseball player who is neither a regular nor a substitute.

Nor is he a bat boy. "Official batting pitcher" is Grampp's title. While other big league clubs rotate that job among regular and relief twirlers, the Cubs employ Grampp almost exclusively in that role. For three reasons Grampp has held his job, working every day.

His favorite stunt is to imitate the opposing pitcher for the day. If Alexander is hurling for the Cardinals, Grampp will throw as Alex does; if Carl Mayes is pitching for the Reds, Hank will feed underhand tosses to Cub batters.

Grampp finishes his day's labors before his mates start to earn their day's pay. By three o'clock of any afternoon he is washed up, for the box score never includes his name.

JUST NATURALLY HARD

"Gee, wife, but this cake of yours is hard. I can't dent it."

"That doesn't surprise me—it's marble cake, dear."

Intellectual Economy

Economy of thought and word
Is constantly on view.
The old ideas may be heard
And seem as good as new.

Usually the Reverse

"That fellow must have an oldfashioned wife," remarked the druggist.

"What makes you think that?" asked the soda jerker.

"He wanted a tonic that would give him a better appetite," replied the druggist.

No Chance

"Well," said a friend, meeting a man whose wife had been sick. I hear your wife is on the mend."

"Yes" growled the man, "the doctor's got her on the mend, but I don't expect her to do any mending after she is well again."

Telescope Needed

He—Another new dress?

She—I can hardly bear to see the old one.

He—I can hardly see the new one.

CONDITIONS RIGHT

She—I hate you!

He—I have an absolute contempt for you!

Friend—Hadn't you two better get married then?

Poor Greasing

Out city cousin on the farm
Thinks joy from life has gone—
He greased the wagon all except
The things the wheels turn on.

Aha!

"Tell me what you eat," said a soda-counter philosopher in a loud voice, "and I'll tell you what you are."

"Countermand my order for shrimp salad," piped up a little man a few stools down.—Washington Letter.

An Expensive Luxury

Neverwed—Doesn't a daughter in your family add greatly to your expenses?

Longwed—It didn't amount to so much until she went into business in order to become self-supporting.

Might Have Been Worse

Mr. Justwed—Yes, I'm terribly angry. I merely criticized the biscuits Ethel made and she hit me with one of them.

His Mother-in-Law—Foolish boy; you got off easy. Her father ate one of my first batch.

From a Distance

Mrs. Hampton—Why, how odd! There goes Mr. Holloway leading a horse down the street.

Mr Hampton.—Horse nothing. That's Holloway in his new fur pony coat.

Soviet Help

Secretary Morrison of the American Federation of Labor, denying the charge that labor was dickering with Soviet Russia, laughed and said:

"The help that Russia could give American labor reminds me of a small boy.

"A small boy applied at a piano house for a job as piano porter. The head piano porter, a giant of a man, looked down at the boy and said:

"'What good would you be to me, a little snip of a thing like you?'

"'Couldn't I grunt,' piped the boy, 'while you lift?'"

WHAT DR. CALDWELL LEARNED IN 47 YEARS PRACTICE

A physician watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the system and is not habit forming. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for anybody's system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly.

Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to the nearest druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

Well Satisfied

Vaudeville Manager—Well, have you any good jokes this season?

Comedian—Yes, sir! I have jokes used by all the leading vaudeville actors.

Decidedly Not Energetic

"Algy never does anything, does he?" "No. He's too lazy even to say, 'Nothing doing.'"

Many a well-informed woman has her servant girl to thank for it.

The Usual

Agnes Repplier of Philadelphia, one of the four members of the Seville exposition committee, sparkles in her conversation as brightly as in her essays.

At the Acorn club the other day Miss Repplier discussed the case of a pretty girl who married a man to reform him, failed in her task, and returned home to her parents.

"Yes," Miss Repplier said, "she married him to mend his ways, but she soon found out that he wasn't worth a darn."

Books for Children

Nothing can be too good for children to read, either in class or out of it; the love of good books must be encouraged in school and at home; children must be familiarized with the appearance of bookshelves and led to make use of libraries and to take a proprietary interest in books.—London Times.

Ask Your Grocer—He Knows

Soap will do better work if 20 Mule Team Borax is added to the water. Borax neutralizes harmful caustics, makes any soap give 3 to 5 times more suds, softens the water and so protects fabrics and colors.—Adv.

That Might Succeed

Reader—How can I keep my daughter home? I used to do it by hiding her clothes. This doesn't work any more.

Editor—Hide her lip-stick.

Use Russ Ball Blue in your laundry. Tiny rust spots may come from inferior Bluing. Ask Grocers.—Adv.

Of relative importance—your "Uncle."

To Start 3,000 Farms

According to a government land development scheme, 3,000 farms will be laid out in the wheat belt near Perth, Australia. The plan involves the building of 700 miles of railways and the expenditure of $42,500,000. It will be submitted to the imperial authorities soon.

Quicker Death to Roaches

It is easier and quicker to kill roaches with Flit because Flit has a greater amount of insect-killing ingredients, although harmless to humans. Spray cracks and corners. The more powerful Flit quickly drives roaches into the open. Spray them direct. They run and hide but die quickly.
